

Sharing

Learning to share toys can be a hard concept to learn at a young age. Individuals with ASD may need more support to learn about sharing, such as using visual reminders. The following scenario and Power Card were written to help teach an individual about the importance of sharing with friends.

Dolphins are one of the smartest and friendliest animals in the world. They love to interact with humans. They are playful and can do many tricks. Some toys that dolphins like to play with are hula-hoops, balls, and rings. They love to have fun with other dolphins too. They are also great at problem solving. They even share their food with other dolphins. Just like a dolphin, I can have fun with my toys and share them with my friends.

Dolphin wants you to remember:

- Share your toys
- Friends share their toys even if it is your favorite toy
- Friends share!

Power Card

Dolphin wants you to remember:

- Share your toys
- Friends share their toys even if it is your favorite toy
- Friends share!

Adapted from Gagnon, 2001